INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Due to the prevalence of Infantile Paralysis in the City of Calgary and the possibility that some of our children may contract the disease here, there is submitted below the general symptoms which usually precede an attack of this disease.

Incubation Symptoms, Slight sick feeling and sore throat.

Attack, Generally sudden with fever, headache, sickness, vomiting, occasional diarrhoea, occasional convulsions, stiffness of the neck or tenderness in weakness of the muscles.

Stage II—But must be suspicious of any cold, especially in the head or throat with headache. In cases such as these it is recommended that the patient stay at home until the cold is cured or further symptoms develop.

While it is not the intention of the Board of Health to enforce a strict quarantine at the present time, since we have no actual cases in the district it is recommended to you that your children be kept away from crowds as much as it is possible and to see that their general health is good.

Your co-operation is requested.

A Trade Treaty with United is one of the hopeful signs both leaders are striving to attain.

At Geneva, the world's destiny is being weighed, and the scales, weighted with the most significant questions are now up, now down, and with breathless anxiety the world waits Canada's delegation has established a name for itself, as its members have been appointed to all the committees of the Assembly.

FREE PLANTING TRAIN HERE LAST WEDNESDAY

Interesting pictures shown and timely address.

Under the direction of the C. P. R. Division of Alberta, a special car was loaded on the siding, here last Wednesday for the purpose of demonstrating the advantage of trees on the prairie and showing the proper way of planting trees the way to encourage their growth.

The program was opened with a display of moving pictures showing how motor cars were built from the raw material to the finished article. Several amusing slides were also shown on the canvas.

The speaker gave a very interesting talk on the need of trees on the prairie to prevent drifting and to conserve moisture conditions. Special attention was drawn to the general benefit of farm gardens, which so many in the west here neglected.

Pictures were also shown impressive on the audience the destruction and devastation caused by bush fires which on many occasions were caused by carelessness on the part of campers and picnickers.

The car was specially fitted up for the comfort and convenience of spectators.

Special lectures were given from 12:30 to 2 and 2 to 4:30 for the public and high school pupils with a lecture at 5 p.m. for the general public.

The other members of the party with the addition of Mr. Patrick provided a chain of entertainment that has never been equaled at these affairs. It has been said that Walter de la Mare is the singer of a young and romantic world; understanding and perceiving as a child, he can express sadness or a hope as wide as a man's life.

His prosaic daily employment as a clerk in a London office made his imaginative world all the more alluring. Determined to become a poet, he adopted the Bohemian dress of the French students of the Latin Quarter and devoted his spare time to the writing of exquisite verse, nominally for children, but haunted by a strange virtual loneliness which caught at the hearts of grown up children as well. "The fine stuff of dreams is still in his later work, the witcheries of water, air, sound and colour, but little substance," realises.

As it is in answer to this comment, the author states his own point of view in saying, "It seems to me that our one hope is to get away from realism in the accepted sense. To me it is utter nonsense to assume that an imaginative piece of poetry is lacking in reality."

Walter de la Mare follows no definite school of poetry. His inner vision finding expression in his own unique patterns both of color and of music, a medium not conducive to brilliant coloring, but to delicate pastels, to misty rainbow hues, or the cold, delicate prism of a frost gem.

"There blooms no bud in May
Can for its white compare
With snow at break of day.
On fields forlorn and bare.

For shadow it hath rose,
Assure and anesthetist;
And every air that blows
Dives in a beauteous mist . . .
or

"Slowly, silently, now the moon
Walks the night in her silver shoes"
With the colors of an alabaster shell
Walter de la Mare has woven a dream-fabric on a loom of light. We'll say he called a poet.

Inspiration, Information, Technique
Glenn Frank, President of the University of Wisconsin, says, "I do not believe that the future lies exclusively upon the laps of the curators. I cannot share the confidence of the social analysts who think that education is likely to provide a compelling impulse that will prompt a whole generation consciously to embark on the noble enterprise of social renaissance through scientific humanism. This dynamic will be found only in some fresh manifestation of the religious impulse."

What we need to "catch the stride of victory" is for economic, educational and religious leaders who are each endeavoring to rebuild their organization on a co-operative foundation rather than the present competitive one, to join hands and each contribute his share to the cause—the religious leader should supply the inspiration, the educational leader the information, and the economic leader the technique, to build a world co-operative brotherhood.

Sunrise—
Yet even as the feet of darkness pass,
Banded in silver, from the river
cross,

Out of the east, with glory overrun,
The young day strides—golden helmeted with sun!
Eleanor Baldwin

Goethe's nine requisites for contented living are here given in brief. Health enough to make work a pleasure. Wealth enough to support your needs. Strength to battle with difficulties and overcome them. Grace enough to confess your sins and forsake them. Patience enough to wait until some good is accomplished. Charity enough to see some good in your neighbor. Love enough to serve you to be useful and helpful to others. Faith enough to make real the things of God. Hope enough to remove all anxious fears concerning the future.

Nature is wonderful. One million years ago she didn't know we were going to wear spectacles; yet look at the way she placed our ears.

ROCKYFORD

On Tuesday evening last week Mrs. J. Prater was guest of honor, when members and visitors of the Ladies Aid assembled here with a farewell party. Mrs. Prater with her daughters Florence and Marjorie and son Bill are leaving shortly to make their home in the States. The evening was spent in visiting and three tables of bridge were played. A delicious lunch was served during which Mrs. R. L. Stone presented the departing member of the Aid with a beautiful pair of cut work pillow cases to which Mrs. Prater suitably replied.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. L. W. Howell is very ill at his home here suffering with throat trouble.

Rockyford ball park was crowded on Sunday afternoon when Cardston and Rockyford met for the finals in the intermediate championship. Both games were very exciting. The first game was won by Rockyford with a 12-5 score. Bert Gibson made three wonderful catches which in the cases helped the home team out of a bad spot. The second game was even better than the first as the scoring was very close all the time. At the end of the ninth it was still a draw, score being 2-2. It was almost too dark to see, so overtime was allowed, therefore the second game does not count. The next two games will be played at Cardston on Saturday, the last two, if necessary will be played at Lethbridge on Sunday. Here's wishing our boys the best of luck in every game.

Mrs. K. M. Gibson had at the week end her sister Mrs. Thomas and family of Acme visiting with her.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stone had as their guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McCrea of Lethbridge, who came up to root for Cardston.

Mrs. J. Prater, Florence, Marjorie and Bill are visiting at Hesketh for the week before they leave for the States.

This new tire—especially suitable for farm work—diggs in and pulls on any road or surface—through mud, snow, sand, bad roads or no roads at all.
 Note the deep, tough, hardy, all-weather tread in this new tread that grips on any surface. These continuous, unbroken bars carry the load evenly, ride smoothly and give long mileage and even wear. Another feature is that the tread is self-cleaning—after every bite the dirt is pushed out. And, no matter how severe the operating conditions may be, the tread is guaranteed not to loosen from the body.
